Australia

Overly-extracted; irritatingly bold, excessively alcoholic; are these your go-to Australian descriptors? Wine descriptors. Wine. When it comes to wine, these aren't the terms you're looking for, to coin a phrase; but, Australian wine has changed, mate, so sit up. While you'll still come across your brush, white-noise Aussie wines, more and more of the Lucky Country's winemakers are taking it back a notch, while making the most of the exceptional vine age they're graced with.

A massive wine glut, a need to compete for exports, a new generation of winemakers lovingly nurturing a different point of view; all of these things have had an impact. Many of those Next-Genners have travelled and then returned home with new ways of thinking, resulting in some very clever and accomplished winemakers currently plying their art across the ditch that are more than worthy of your attention.

Much like venturing into the gobsmacking New Releases section of your digital music platform, the challenge is that when you're standing in front of the shelves, you just don't know what you're looking at. To aid you in this venture and help you navigate, we've ditched the variety-region-winery-type designations and divided the wines into 'how they taste' categories. You're welcome. So climb down from your high horse, cobber, and come in for a cool, refreshing tippie. No worries, mate.

MONT-REDON

CHÂTEAU MONT-REDON

RHÔNE VALLEY ROYALTY

Established in 1344 (a full century-and-a-half before Christopher Columbus 'discovered' the New World), Château Mont-Redon is one of the oldest wine-producing estates in France, as well as the largest single property in Châteauneuf-du-Pape. Along with all that provenance, there's a new focus on taking things into the future, with quality ever at the forefront. A recent change has seen managers Jean Abeille and Didier Fabre retire and the next generation take the lead, with Pierre Fabre at the helm. Recent upgrades include an optical sorting machine, whereby a photo is taken of every single berry to determine whether it meets the criteria, with only the best ones kept. Next off the press is a Gigondas which Pierre has made from grapes purchased off a great site. Mont-Redon also own vineyards in the Lirac and Côtes du Rhône appellations, as well as undertaking a foray into Provençal rosé via their Château Rotor label. Fingers, pies, and all that. Included in the line-up this month is the 2018 white Côtes du Rhône, a new import for us. Made up of around 55% Viognier, the balance of the blend is Grenache Blanc and Roussanne. An ideal wine for early drinking, unlike the Châteauneuf-du-Pape Blanc, which is made for aging.

Mont-Redon operate from a manual they themselves call, with some justification, 'ancient know-how'. Their Châteauneuf-du-Pape is a definitive expression, a fragrant nose of cherry and raspberry, peppery notes and toasty oak, the palate delivering plum, berry, chocolate and spice, seamlessly integrated and wrapped in supple tannins. 'This well-known estate has produced some of the greatest Châteauneuf-du-Papes I have ever tasted,' opined the oft-quoted Robert Parker. Indeed.

MADAM SASS

CUISINE'S No.1 NZ ROSÉ IN 2018 IS BACK

Attitude, style, extravagance; that's Madam Sass. She waltzed onto the New Zealand stage a couple of years ago with an early-drinking, sweetly-priced Central Otago Pinot Noir that blew the socks off a few aficionados, following that up last vintage with a brazen little rosé. Juicy and vibrant, berries and stonefruits, a soupçon of spice, a smidgen of sweet; it's all there, and back for more with the just-released 2019. Hard to beat, as Cuisine might say.

THE DEMON DRINK GOES PINK

Blushing, indeed. How unabashed. Rockburn introduced their alluring, what've-you-got-to-lose-other-than-your-soul? Pinot Noir under the Devil's Staircase moniker some time ago, eventually adding a Pinot Gris to the label, and now introducing a tempting wee Blanc de Noir, fashioned from their inimitable Pinot Noir fruit, naturally, with a mere two hours of skin contact (Just enough to arouse an enduring longing). Delicate notes of strawberry, white peach and toffee apple, the sound of Pan's pipes ringing faintly in your ears... Go on, you know you want to.

CHARLES HEIDSIECK

Here at Glengarry, we have a thing for champagne, and comfortably rugged up within that somewhat fluffy blanket-statement, we can confidently declare that Charles Heidsieck is a total favourite. Its provenance is immense, with origins going as far back as 1785. A company with that sort of history does not reintroduce a wine to its portfolio without a considerable amount of care and attention. The news of the new-release non-vintage blanc de blancs is, then, of great interest to Charles Heidsieck aficionados everywhere.

The history of champagne is populated with a fascinating cast of characters featuring canny monks, indomitable widows and free-spirited smooth talkers, and with his often audacious forays into the world in search of markets, the energetic, extroverted founder of the company, Charles-Camille Heidsieck – famously known as Champagne Charlie – fell seamlessly in to the latter category. Channelling his ancestor’s adventurous spirit, Charles-Camille’s grandson, Charles-Marcel, is behind the creation of the new wine.

The Charles Heidsieck wines are matured 25 metres beneath the ground in chalk cellars dating back to the 11th Century, under the watchful eye of current Chef de Cave Cyril Brun who, following in the footsteps of the late Daniel Thibault, Régis Camus and Thierry Roset, is stamping his own touch of genius on this distinguished brand. At his disposal is the largest collection of reserve wines in Champagne, with the inherent quality of these expressions one of the region’s best-kept secrets.

CHARLES HEIDSIECK CHAMPAGNE
41523 BLANC DE BLANCS BRUT NV+ GIFTBOX

It’s a rare event for Charles to add an entirely new wine to their portfolio, so we may just be a wee bit excited, given the sublime quality levels that this house adheres to. Classic Chardonnay notes of white peach, citrus, honeysuckle and hazelnut greet the nose, while the palate is freshly taut, a generous and full-bodied mouthful with a delicate mineral touch and a velvety effervescence. A 25% addition of reserve wines and prolonged aging in Charles Heidsieck’s chalk cellars add their magic.

A TASTE OF NELSON

SMALL PLAYERS ON A BIG STAGE

Nelson has been attracting artists, artisans and lifestyleers for decades and this is, in some ways, reflected in the wineries one finds in the South Island's most northerly wine region. Producing just over 3% of New Zealand's wine, it is somewhat overshadowed by big-noting regional siblings like Marlborough and Central Otago; but the intrigue of Nelson is that it is not so easily classified. The soil types and mesoclimates of the vineyards vary considerably, delivering a diversity of styles and character. Wineries are mainly located in the Upper Moutere, Waimea Plains and Brightwater sub-regions, and the whole region enjoys a sunny maritime climate boasting warm daytime temperatures moderated by sea breezes. Most of the wineries are small, boutique-style family operations, often run on sustainable and/or BioGrow principles. The quality is excellent, the expressions offering plenty of versatility to go with their distinctive terroir-driven qualities. These are great food wines, and well worth the investment.

With 100% sustainable accreditation, three generations of the family live and work among the vines situated in the sub-region of Brightwater. Californian émigré Patrick Stowe is descended from Napa Valley winemaking stock, but he fell in love with Nelson and never left, making wine there now for almost 25 years. "The vineyard has a temperate, maritime microclimate with high sunshine hours. We don't use machinery in the vineyard; it is entirely hand-managed to maintain low cropping levels and all the fruit is hand-picked." His Chardonnay is a fragrant, sumptuous array of peach, almond, cream and vanilla, replete with rich textures and flavours. Concentrated, expressive, fabulously long.

Tim and Judy Finn own and operate Neudorf Winery in Upper Moutere. Today, Neudorf export to 16 countries and have their wines listed in some the world's finest restaurants. The Tom's Block is a fragrant and supple offering of surging juicy flavours and elegantly restrained tannins, the fruit kept in check by a vibrant mineral edge.

GREENHOUGH NELSON
15067 APPLE VALLEY RIESLING 2018
$19.99

Located at Hope, near Nelson, Greenhough's home vineyard is planted in free-draining, clay-rich soils beneath the foothills of the Richmond Ranges. The winery was established in 1991 by Andrew Greenhough and Jenny Wheeler, who draw upon old vines, lower yields, organic processes and small-batch winemaking to produce their distinctively flavoured wines. Their single vineyard Pinot Gris is medium-sweet, lower alcohol in style, with a floral-edged nose and juicy sweet fruit offset by a fresh, mouth-watering finish.
